Board trustees recalled

VAN BUREN — Van Buren Township voters went to the polls yesterday and in one stroke recalled from office five members of the township board, including the supervisor.

"I am as shocked as anyone," said Township Clerk Doreen Craven, one of the four elected officials targeted by the recall. "I believe that the voters are turned off by politics and we were the victims."

Voters turned out of office Supervisor Patricia Cullin by a vote of 1,924 to 1,338. Mrs. Craven, who served as the township clerk, was ousted from office by a vote of 1,908 to 1,268. Voters also recalled Township Treasurer Tom Welty, who served the police commissioner. He lost his office by a vote of 2,145 to 1,130.

Trustees Tim Toohey and Chester Wojcie were also turned out of office. The vote to recall Toohey was 1,990 yes as compared to 1,142 no. Trustee Wojcie was recalled 1,810 to 1,188.

The make-up of the present board will remain intact until the board of canvassers meets two weeks hence to certify the election. In the meantime the transition of government will be shifted to the deputy clerk and deputy treasurer. There are two trustees, Darwin Kureth and Thurston Jahr, who were not singled out for recall.

However, Jahr, who was appointed by the present board to fill a vacancy created by Fred Domen's resignation, lost his bid for office when he was defeated yesterday for the Democratic nomination for the office.

Jahr holds 355 votes as compared to political newcomer Marilyn Montgomery's 686. Mrs. Montgomery will face the Republican nominee Ron Yurchak in the general election scheduled in November for the trustee's seat.

Vic Edwards, also a Democratic hopeful, received 361 votes. However, he was eliminated from the running.

Mrs. Montgomery, who is a long-time resident of the township, is the wife of former Police Chief George Montgomery who resigned last year after a controversial appointment.

Jaycees raise $350 for scoreboard

The Elmer Johnson Park softball field will soon be sporting an electric scoreboard thanks to the LOCAL Jaycees who held a fundraiser.

The Jaycees managed to raise approximately $350 toward the scoreboard through a raffle that ended with three residents — Mike Moomauw, Jerry Turner and Jerry Vaughn winding up as first, second and third place winners, respectively.

The Jaycees will also host a "Horseshoe Tournament" at 10 a.m., Aug. 28 in the Elmer Johnson Park. There is a $10 per team (2 players to a team) registration fee. First place winners will be awarded $100 while the runner-up and third place finishing teams will get $75 and $50 respectively.

For further information, telephone Fred Minda at 729-1754.

Child killer gets long jail term

Taylor sentenced to mandatory 22 years in prison

Convicted child killer Ronald Taylor Jr. will spend the next 22 years of his life in prison.

Taylor, 38, of Romulus was sentenced last week in Wayne County Circuit Court for the second degree murder of 10-year-old Monica Webb, who was killed during a volley of bullets sprayed on the Webb home by Taylor after a family argument.

Taylor was found guilty of second degree murder, five counts of assault to commit murder and possession of a firearm. He was sentenced to 20 to 40 years for second degree murder; 15 to 20 for each count of assault to commit murder and meted out a mandatory two year jail term for the felony with a firearm conviction.

According to police, Taylor will have to serve at least 22 years before he would become eligible for parole.

fore he would become eligible for parole.

Taylor was found guilty by a jury of fatally shooting the Webb girl. The additional charges resulted from Taylor wounding Monica Webb's twin sister, Erika, through the arm, and a bullet also grazed her brother, Robert Jr., 13.

The children's mother was also hit by a bullet during the New Year's Day shooting spree that police said was sparked by an invitation by Mr. Webb to Taylor to leave the Webb home after he (Taylor) used foul language.

Police said that Taylor later returned to the Webb home on Moore Street, and, with a 30 caliber rifle, began shooting into the Webb home.

Monica Webb was shot in the head as she sat in the family's living room couch in front of the window.

Police reported that Taylor sent approximately 25 shots into the front of the residence, killing the one child and wounding the others. He then fled the area only to return later to repeat the shooting this time at the rear of the house.

Taylor was apprehended a short time later by Romulus police officers who were summoned to the scene.

Sheriff's vehicle burned

Reward offered for information in arson case

Area fire investigators are hoping that someone will have information and take advantage of an up to $2,000 in rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who were responsible for the break-in and arson of the Wayne County Sheriff's mobile communications vehicle.

The incident occurred on July 22, however, police and fire officials have not been able to come up with any suspects in the case.

The incident occurred at 3:12 a.m. and according to Sgt. Robert Barthold, the arson was an attempt to destroy what radio equipment was left in the semi trailer following the break-in.

The trailer was being stored at the now closed Sheriff's Road Patrol Office on Henry Ruff Road at Michigan Avenue in Westland.

Apparently, portable radios, used by the Road Patrol, were taken in the break-in, and have been used since to garner license checks through the Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN).

Barthold, who is working with Fire Capt. Robert Perry, said some of the equipment stored in the trailer, components to the department's helicopter, were found the day of the break-in and fire in the garage of a Garden City residence. The find was reported to police by the homeowner after he discovered a box, addressed to the Sheriff's Department, in his garage that had not been there the night before.

Voter turnout heavy in V-B

Voter turnout in Van Buren Township, where five members of the township board face a recall was "heavy," according to township officials who couldn't predict at press time which way the recall would go.

Facing recall are Township Supervisor Patricia Cullin, Treasurer Tom Welty, clerk Doreen Craven and trustees Tim Toohey and Chester Wojcie.

The Associated Newspapers will have a complete round-up and analysis of the results of the primary in next week's edition.

The reward is available through the Fire Marshall's Division of the Michigan State Police, and Barthold hopes it will entice someone with information about the incident to step forward.

Information on the incident can be directed to Barthold's attention at 721-6311 or Perry's at 721-2009.

Local man charged in auto deaths of 2 teens

A 63-year-old Romulus man was charged last week with negligent homicide in connection with the auto-pedestrian deaths of two teenage youths.

The defendant, Joe Willie Yarerough, was arraigned on two counts of negligent homicide with a motor vehicle. He stood mute in the courtroom of District Judge James Stone.

Judge Stone entered a plea of not guilty for Yarerough who was released on a $5,000 personal bond. He will reappear in court later this month for pre-trial examination.

Yarerough is charged in the deaths of Brian Hunter, 18, of Inkster, and Tina Jones, 17, of Romulus. Hunter and Jones were either strolling or about to cross Beverly Rd, just west of Chamberlin Rd, when they were struck by the car operated by the accused, police said.

Yarerough stopped at the scene of the accident, according to Romulus police.

Hunter was pronounced dead shortly after arrival at Wayne County General Hospital, while Miss Jones died two days later (Aug. 1) from injuries sustained in the accident.

Police said that they had presented their case to the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office who had recommended that the defendant be charged with the two counts of negligent homicide.

A grand opening

The world-famous Budweiser Clydesdales were among the many attractions at the official opening of Central Distributors in Romulus on Sunday. The facility, which distributes Anheuser-Busch products throughout the area, marked the ceremonial ribbon-cutting of their new warehouse and offices with an open house and visits by local officials and dignitaries.

And on hand for the prestigious ceremonies were Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks and Mayor William Oakley who had an opportunity first-hand to lead the famous horses out to the warehouse grounds. The new offices are located east of Middlebelt, between Wick and Goddard Rds.

Handicapped -- they don't see it the same way most do

By SUE BACHAND
ANP Staff Writer

John Wood is a man making dreams come true.

He doesn't wave a magic wand or practice witchcraft, but he does, along with six other teachers in the Wayne-Westland School District, offer many young people the chance to fulfill one of the biggest dreams of every teenager.

John Wood teaches drivers education. And while that may not seem to be an act comparable to wizardry — Wood teaches the art of driving to handicapped and learning disabled students, young people who would never have a chance to obtain that most precious of all badges of adulthood, the driver's license, without him.

Wood, 34, as the supervisor of the special education division of drivers education for the school district has taught more than 60 handicapped students to drive well enough to pass the state driver's examination. He deals with paraplegic, physically handicapped, emotionally impaired, learning disabled, hearing impaired and other types of physical imperfections with his students.

He explained that there is such a diversity of areas of impairment and that each requires a specific technique for out-of-the-ordinary type instruction. He explained that recently one of the teachers developed a system of hand signals performed on the dashboard of the vehicle to instruct the student driver who had a hearing impairment. "Obviously the student couldn't take his eyes off the road to read the teacher's lips, so the teacher, Tom Donnelly, devised the hand signal system. It really worked out very well," Wood said.

The cars used in the specialized training are equipped with adaptive devices for the physically handicapped. Mirrors are larger and placed on the side of the car, there are steering grip bars and hand controls for both the brake and gas for paraplegic students and, according to Wood, a multitude of other items.

Robert Greenwell of Wayne is the man chiefly responsible for the alterations to the vehicles — a field in which he is an expert. Greenwell has been modifying all types of vehicles for the handicapped for a number of years and has devised systems to adapt motor vehicles for every type of handicap.

"You just come up with a mechanical way to do anything a person is physically unable to do," Greenwell explained. "There is enough technology these days from other industries to adapt mechanically to any function. "It is difficult in that we don't simply move a control or add an item, we have to rebuild the entire system," he added.

Greenwell is the proprietor of Handicapped Driving Aids of Michigan located in Wayne and demonstrated several of the vehicles he had on the premises. Hydraulic lifts and vacuum systems for placing wheel chairs from the ground into the most effective position for driving, flasher systems operated with the elbow near the door and controls adapted totally for specific individual handicaps were displayed.

According to Greenwell, most conversions start at about $1,800 but the average van conversion used (See WHEELCHAIR Page B-6)

A dream comes true

After three years of studying American history and language, Sumpter Township's Roberto (at left) and Nenita Ballesteros earned their United States citizenship, and the rights that go with that important document. One of those rights is the right to vote and the Ballesteros took the initial step in casting their ballots by registering to vote at the township hall. The couple came to this country on Nov. 19, 1976 from the Philippines and were joined a year later with their two oldest children. The family has increased in size — Randy, a two-year-old, was born here and is therefore a natural born citizen. Roberto and Nenita joined thousands of others in the area, county, and state and voted in the primary elections yesterday.

Sumpter couple's dream comes true

Ballesteros become U.S. citizens

The Ballesteros have three children — Mary Elaine, 15, Roberto, Jr. 7, and Randy, 2, who was born in the States and is a natural born citizen.

The Ballesteros came to this country in November of 1976 from the Philippines and were joined a year later by their two oldest children. The children also will receive citizenship.

Ballesteros graduated last week with honors from Washenaw Community College with an Associate Degree in digital equipment technology. Mrs. Ballesteros is working at Wayne County Community College where she is participating in an adult work experience program sponsored by Wayne Metropolitan Community Services through the Wayne County Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA).

Roberto and Nenita Ballesteros had a dream, and that dream recently came true. They wanted and they became United States citizens.

After residing in Sumpter Township for the past three years, the Ballesteros made their dream come true when they applied for and successfully passed all examinations to receive their citizenships.

36th annual Wayne County Fair is off to 'perfect start'

By VALERIE HIGGINS

"Meet me in St. Louis, Louie. Meet me at the Fair..."

Although the popular song wasn't one of those that was played Sunday during the opening of the 36th annual Wayne County Fair, there were many, many tunes and songs which captured the hearts of the hundreds who flocked to see the parade.

The Fair was launched under a perfect blue sky and, although the weather has cooled, thousands are expected to jam the fairgrounds on Quirk Road in Belleville during the week-long festivities.

Here are some of the programs to look forward to:

Kids Day will be held on Thursday at the Fair Grounds located at 10871 Quirk Road in Belleville.

With a circus theme in mind, some 50 clowns will be at the Fair Grounds to give away balloons and greet the youngsters. There is no admission charge for children, adults charge $1, till 5 p.m.

Along with the 4-H clowns, Chunkie Cheese and friends from the Pizza Time Theatre will give out tickets to a free raffle. "To get a free raffle ticket all you have to do is go up to one of the clowns and ask him secret," said Cathie Gentz, Kids' Day Coordinator.

"The clowns will tell you a secret clue, and give a ticket for the drawing and a balloon."

"The only thing stressed Mrs. Gentz is that you must be present to win. The prizes will be awarded at the grandstand at 5 p.m. prior to the Celebrity Livestock Sweepstakes.

An assortment of activities are planned.

A Celebrity Livestock Sweep-

Belleville cyclist journeys 'around all 5 Great Lakes'

A Belleville High social studies teacher realized a longtime personal goal last week when he completed a bike trip circling Lake Erie.

Bill Waara said that the purpose in biking "around all of the Great Lakes was basically to show that anyone can go virtually anywhere by bicycle.

"And next year I hope to be leading American Youth Hostel tours in Europe," Waara said.

Waara has now completely circled each of the five Great Lakes by bicycle and is believed to be the first person to have done so. His travels around the lakes of the past several summers have taken him over 5,000 miles at an average speed of about 12 miles per hour. Some were very unusual miles. Waara is a former sponsor of the Belleville High Wilderness Club, the High School Ski Club as well as an organizer of local bike trips. He is a certified Trip Leader of the national Bikecentennial and has participated in the March of Dimes and Wolverine "200" Bike-a-thons.

Romulus garners a first place

Romulus Bicentennial Band, which as been featured in several parades this year, came up with the winning combination in the Youth Bands category at the 36th annual 4-H Fair. Director Dick Krause has whipped up one of the finer youth bands in the state, and is looking forward "to ever better things in the future from our kids."

Belleville's Belles are best

When it comes to adult bands and county fairs, it's difficult to top Belleville's Kitchen Belle which was awarded the No. 1 prize at the parade. The group's director, Myrtie Wells, said she was "proud of the players who are devoted to entertaining people and who love it."

They're No.1

The Waltz Improvement Association has a lot to cheer about this week as its float (above) was judged No. 1 in the adult float contest at the annual County Fair.

The group received a huge trophy to show off in its display case.

Here comes the grand marshal

With Atchinson Ford's Skip Andersen in the driver's seat, the 36th annual Wayne County Fair parade got off to a perfect start on Sunday as bands, clowns, floats and a King & Queen of the Fair highlighted a mile long parade. Andersen is wheeling grand marshall Bill Mills, a 4-H agent and coordinator, and Patricia Cullin, Van Buren Township supervisor, in a vintage Ford. The Fair will continue at the Fairgrounds on Quirk Road until Aug. 14.

One city's approach to Foster Care Homes

Officials eye municipal ownership

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

In an attempt to gain more local input into the placement of foster care homes within city boundaries, Wayne officials are preparing to discuss the possibility of municipal ownership of such a facility with representatives of the Northville Residential Training Center.

The Wayne City Council unanimously agreed recently to pursue the possibility of city ownership of a home for the mentally retarded after learning that the Northville Center had abandoned plans to build a house for six severely mentally impaired persons at the corner of Laurenwood and Glenwood.

Last month City Engineer Ralph Migid reported that the site plan for the proposed one-level structure failed to adhere to city codes and ordinances due to the lack of available space between the side street and the house.

A meeting of nearly 200 concerned citizens on July 14, many from Wayne's Glenwood Heights Subdivision, drew various criticisms regarding the procedures surrounding site selection for foster care homes.

At the session city officials reiterated their opinion that "the state should adopt a fair share policy based on patient population regarding the placement of the handicapped and the retarded."

Although Laima Starwas, director of Northville's Community Placement Unit, recently admitted the Laurenwood site would not be pursued, she told the council of the Center's "intent to develop an Alternative Intermediate Services home in Wayne."

She added that "another location is being sought in place of the Laurenwood site."

Mayor Patrick Norton termed the possibility of the city becoming the owner of the proposed home, "an avant garde move for the community."

"The alternative is to have the home placed in Wayne outside our discretionary jurisdiction," the mayor explained. "The city would not run the house, we would only select the site based on our own input."

Statistics recently released by the Northville Center showed the existence of five mental health group homes in Wayne with three other license applications pending. A survey of existing homes in neighboring communities revealed the presence of nine such facilities, in Westland, eight in Canton Township and 15 in Inkster.

Wayne residents complained that the study revealed a disproportionate number of group homes in cities such as Dearborn (two homes) and Dearborn Heights (two homes), based on total households in the respective municipalities.

"We want a fair share plan," Norton declared. "It's been alleged that the reason cities like Dearborn and Grosse Pointe don't have as many (group) homes is because Realtors there get together to keep them out. Allegedly it's done the same way that Dearborn has kept the blacks out."

According to the proposed municipal ownership concept, the city would invest in the local facility for the right to pick its location.

Councilman Milt Mack's suggestion that a "moratorium" be proposed on future location of foster care homes in Wayne while discussions continued failed to garner any support from his colleagues.

"That would create an impediment to the discussions," claimed Norton. "If they (state agency officials) perceive this as simply a way to delay things, the discussions will never get off the ground."

"There are a number of state agencies involved in the placing of homes," remarked Councilman Robert Beeny. "I don't know how this (possible city ownership) will solve the problem. The problem is in Lansing."

Congratulations

At Citizens Insurance Company of America's 1982 Agency Regional Meetings, the Henry R. Deering Agency of Belleville was presented with a plaque in recognition of 50 years association with the company. The presentation was made by James K. Coville, vice president of Marketing (from left), who congratulates Darryl Raymond, Jr. and Richard S. Smith. The Henry R. Deering Agency was licensed with Citizens in 1932 by Andrew J. Krebs under the name of the Huron Valley Realty Company. According to company records, Henry R. Deering joined the agency in the spring of 1946 and not until January of 1964 did it become the Henry R. Deering, Inc. Raymond began his association with the agency in 1965 and Smith in 1966.

Child labor laws remain intact Ford stops administration bid to weaken them

At the insistence of Congressman William D. Ford (D-Taylor), the Reagan Administration has withdrawn its proposed regulations to severely weaken federal child labor laws.

Congressman Ford had joined with Senator Edward Kennedy (D-Massachusetts) and Congressman

George Miller (D-California) in sponsoring a House-Senate resolution to prohibit implementation of the regulations, which spurred the U.S. Department of Labor action.

"These proposals were an outrage," Congressman Ford said. "They would have permitted businesses to hire 14-year-old children to work 24 hours a week during the school week at hazardous jobs and to keep them at work until 9 p.m. on school nights."

The Reagan Administration justified its position on the grounds that the government needs to expand work opportunities for 14 and 15-year-olds. Congressman Ford noted that the needs of children were never considered by the Administration in their decision making.

"1.8 million teenagers between the ages of 16 and 19 are unemployed, and the overall unemployment rate is 9.5 percent," Congressman Ford explained. "If we expand the number of 14 and 15-year-old children in the workforce, whose jobs will they take? Their brothers' and sisters', or their parents' at lower wages?"

Further, Congressman Ford pointed out, recent studies have shown an increased use of drugs and alcohol and poorer school performance among children who work long hours during the school week.

A gala affair

Although he didn't really need a name card, Nita Laine pins the card onto Romulus Mayor William Oakley's lapel while the mayor's wife, Mary, watches approvingly. The occasion was the mayor's 52nd birthday celebration held last week at the Holiday Inn in Romulus where more than 300 V.I.P.S. friends and politicians showed up for the gala affair. The mayor will be 52 on Aug. 17. Mrs. Laine serves as the mayor's secretary.

For month of July

Jobless rate is higher

Michigan's jobless rate of 14.7 percent rose slightly from June's level of 14.3 percent, according to figures released today by S. Martin Taylor, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission. The number of jobless workers across the state rose by 28,000 during July to 648,000.

Total employment grew by 39,000 to 3,757,000. In July 1981, the state's unemployment rate was 12.0 percent with 527,000 out of work.

Taylor said that the rise in employment during July is essentially due to seasonal job gains in agriculture and youth finding summer employment.

Michigan's seasonally adjusted jobless rate in July remained unchanged from June's level of 14.4 percent. The adjusted jobless total was 624,000 in July, up from 613,000 in June.

Nationally, the seasonally adjusted July jobless rate was 9.8 percent up from June's 9.5 percent.

A 'diamond' in the rough

By STEVE O'LEARY
ANP Special Writer

Ever wonder what it would be like to be famous? Of course, everyone has. To walk down the street and be recognized, begged for an autograph... and on the other side of the coin, to never be able to eat in a restaurant without being interrupted halfway through the salad—both instances spell out F-A-M-E. But for Ken Ingle of Canton Township, those things are just plain fun for now. You see, Ken isn't famous. He also isn't Neil Diamond, of whom he's the spitting image.

Even for one who had seen Ingle win a celebrity look-alike contest on Kelly & Company a few days before the meeting, the face-to-face effect was staggering. No make-up, no like-clothing, no sight tricks of any kind. As Ken says, "It's just me. I'm lucky."

Until five years ago, Ken Ingle knew absolutely nothing about Neil Diamond, including how he looked. He was just an occasional voice on the radio as far as Ken was concerned. "Then I went to see him at Pine Knob with a friend," he says. "We were there before the show started so we went back to the stands to get something to eat. I ordered a dozen bagels from the girl and she just froze. She couldn't move! I had no idea what was going on, but my friend was in stitches. I said 'Could I please have my bagels?' and she got another person that worked there—and they froze, too! Finally I got my bagels though. They were staring at me wide-eyed and said 'No charge, sir!' They still probably think they gave a dozen bagels to Neil Diamond!"

No doubt they do, but it wasn't until the show started that Ken understood what all the fuss earlier had been about. "I was amazed... just amazed."

From that day he started paying attention to his famous double, getting record albums, pictures—anything he could find. He went to see Diamond's movie, "The Jazz Singer," as soon as it opened. "Afterwards, my wife and I stood in the lobby, and it was hilarious—people would walk out, then back in, then out again, staring at me out of the corners of their eyes the whole time. People were literally stumbling into each other as they walked by. One of the doorman just would not believe I wasn't Diamond no matter what I said. He asked my wife to 'Tell this guy what a great job he does—my mother loves him!'"

But Ingle concedes it's not all fun and games. On the way in to Diamond's last concert at Joe Louis Arena he had a giggle when Shirley Eder nearly walked into him and stopped dead in her tracks—till she realized it couldn't be Neil Diamond, because she had just finished doing an interview with him inside. But as the hall filled up, so did the aisle where Ingle was sitting, with people demanding autographs (and more) and refusing to leave, causing the security guards to clear the aisle.

"It's sort of scary sometimes," says Ken, "when you stop and think of all the security Diamond has around him, mainly to protect him from fans, and there I was, being mistaken for him by all those people. But I love it anyway. It's a lot of fun."

Last December was the first time Ingle decided to enter a contest. "It was a Neil Diamond Look-alike contest, I entered and won easily." Then a relative of Ken's was watching Kelly & Company, Detroit's morning talk show, when an upcoming celebrity look-alike contest was announced.

The relative wrote to the television show and Ken received tickets. "It was really a stroke of luck for me," he says, "because the judge was Ron Smith, who operates the country's largest look-alike agency, and I'd been trying to get in touch with him for awhile." Ken "sent in some pictures, but I haven't been happy with any of the ones that've been taken, so it was good to meet him in person."

Needless to say, Ken Ingle won the contest, and with a little luck he'll be an even bigger winner soon. "Ron Smith showed interest in me and we're going to be in contact. He said he already had three or four Diamond look-alikes, but that he was going to backlog them because none of them even came close to me."

"He told me that if he does use me, it won't be for any smaller things, only the bigger things. Now, I don't know exactly what that means, but it sounds promising."

Ron Smith's clients have been appearing regularly in commercials these days, as both the Telly Savalas and Robert Redford look-alikes work for him. "Also," Ken adds, "I heard he's going to be making a movie with an all look-alike cast... I'm not an actor—I drive a beer truck for a living—but who knows?"

Ken's wife also enjoys his oft-mistaken notoriety—even though it can't be much fun for her watching seads of young women throw themselves at her husband, regardless of the fact he's not their idol. "Actually," he says, "it's not like that. For one thing, I'd never take advantage of the situation and my wife knows that. She enjoys it as much as I do."

"It's gotten so we can't ever go to a restaurant or lounge without people coming up to us," he laments, "usually for an autograph. The funny thing is, people really want you to be him, but ever when you've explained that you're not him, they still want an autograph, with my name and 'Neil Diamond look-alike' under it."

So what does the future hold for Neil Dia...uh, Ken Ingle? For now he'll be back to work at Stroh's, surprising store owners with his appearance, practicing with his son's band, "The Showcasemen" ("I can't sing though, but I'll try") and most of all he'll be waiting for word from Ron Smith in L.A.

Views On Dental Health

By SHERMAN H. KANE, D.D.S.

IMPORTANCE OF YOUR MEDICAL HISTORY

Your general medical history has a lot to do with the type of treatment you will receive at your dentist. For example, if you are taking a drug affecting blood clotting, the dentist should be informed so as to be aware of potential hemorrhaging problems should he have to extract a tooth.

A patient with high blood pressure should certainly inform the dentist. Certain anesthetics and medications should be used in preference to others.

If you have some form of heart condition, the dentist may change his method of working with you. The patient with a cardiac pacemaker should certainly inform his dentist. The dentist might have planned to do electrosurgery, a technique that utilizes high-frequency current to remove gum tissue. If the pacemaker doesn't have proper shields or safeguards, the high frequency current could cause it to stop or become erratic. The dentist can use other means of treatment.

If you are pregnant, diabetic, allergic to certain medication, your dentist must know these things—it's for YOUR benefit.

HURON TOWNSHIP ORDINANCE 82-3

An Ordinance to amend the following Sections of Ordinance No. 20. Section 02.70.10 is amended to read as follows:

10. Dwelling, One-Family: A building, STRUCTURE, MOBILE HOME OR PREFABRICATED, PREMANUFACTURED OR PRECUT STRUCTURE designed exclusively for and occupied exclusively by one (1) family. Sections 11.20.01, 12.20.01, 14.20.01 and 20.20.01 are amended to read as follows:

01. One-family dwellings.

A new Section 40.60.00 is to be added as follows:

01. A one-family dwelling and any additions or alterations thereto erected or placed in the Township, other than mobile homes located in a licensed mobile home park approved under the provisions of Article XXV herein, shall conform to the following regulations in addition to all other regulations of this Ordinance:

It shall comply with all pertinent building, construction and fire codes for one-family dwellings.

The plan outline of the dwelling, including only heated living area, shall be large enough to contain within it a square of 20 feet on a side. This size requirement shall not make any house existing at the date of amendment nonconforming so that they cannot be enlarged or improved. It shall be firmly attached to a permanent foundation constructed on the site in accordance with the State Construction Code and shall have a wall of the same perimeter dimensions of the dwelling, and constructed of such materials and type as required in the applicable building code for one-family dwellings. In the event that the dwelling is a mobile home, as defined herein, such dwelling shall be installed pursuant to the manufacturer's set up instructions and shall be secured to the premises by an anchoring system or device complying with the rules and regulations of the Michigan Mobile Home Commission and shall have a perimeter wall as required above.

In the event that a dwelling is a mobile home as defined herein, each mobile home shall be installed with the wheels removed. Additionally, no dwellings shall have any exposed towing mechanism, undercarriage or chassis.

It shall be connected to public sewer and water supply, if available, or if not available, to private facilities approved by the Wayne County Health Department.

It shall comply with all pertinent zoning, subdivision and other ordinances regulating use, floor area, lot size, setback and yards in the zoning district in which it is located.

It shall comply with all pertinent building and fire codes. In the case of a mobile home, all construction and all plumbing, electrical apparatus and insulation within and connected to said mobile home shall be of a type and quality conforming to the "Mobile Home Construction and Safety Standards" as promulgated by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development, being 24CFR3280, and as from time to time such standards may be amended.

Additionally, all dwellings shall meet or exceed all applicable roof snow load and strength requirements.

It shall be aesthetically compatible in design and appearance to homes in the neighborhood in which it is located. In the first instance, it shall be the responsibility of the Building Department to determine whether this standard is met. The Building Department may, in its discretion, refer the matter to the Zoning Board of Appeals for their determination. Any party aggrieved by an adverse decision by the Building Department may appeal to the Board of Appeals, which Board shall make the determination with findings, based upon its independent judgement, without reference to the standards for the granting of variances. The determination of compatibility shall be based upon the character, design, and appearance of residential dwellings located outside of mobile home parks within two thousand (2,000) feet of the subject dwelling, where such area is developed with dwellings to the extent of not less than 20% of the lots situated within said area; or where said area is not so developed by the character, design and appearance of the residential dwelling generally found throughout the Township. The determination of compatibility shall also be based upon compliance with the following standards:

- The dwelling shall have a combination of roof overhang and pitch comparable to the overhang and pitch of homes typically found in the neighborhood in which it is to be located.
 - The dwelling shall have a chimney that is constructed of material and style similar to those of other dwellings typically found in the neighborhood in which it is to be located.
 - The dwelling shall have steps and/or porches which provide access to exterior doors, which are permanently attached to the ground and to the structure, and which are comparable to steps and/or porches of homes typically found in the neighborhood in which it is to be located.
 - The dwelling and roof shall be covered with a material which is in composition, color, texture, malleability, direction of joints, and method of fastening to the structure comparable to those typically found in the neighborhood in which it is to be located.
 - The dwelling shall have windows located on the front sides and exterior doors either on the front and rear, or front and side, as generally found in homes in the neighborhood in which it is to be located.
 - The dwelling shall not have a detached garage, if attached garages are typically found in the neighborhood in which it is to be located.
02. A dwelling may be approved as aesthetically compatible in design and appearance to homes in the neighborhood in which it is to be located even if all of the above conditions do not exist, provided it is determined that the dwelling and/or its site has other design features which make it aesthetically compatible to homes in the district. The foregoing shall not be construed to prohibit innovative design concepts involving such matters as energy conscious devices such as solar energy, view, unique land contour, or relief from the common or standard designed home.

Section 14. EFFECTIVE DATE

This Ordinance shall be made effective thirty (30) days after its publication in the Romulus Roman.

Belleville woman wins Cadillac

Barbara Stimach of Belleville, an independent sales director for Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc., has just been awarded a brand new pink Cadillac in recognition of her outstanding sales achievements with the Dallas-based firm. Ms. Stimach earned the pink Cadillac after her sales unit exceeded specified sales requirements during a six-month qualification period. The pink Cadillac is a true symbol of success for MARY Kay sales directors since, in a sales force of 150,000, only 630 are currently on the road. In a company that awards such prizes as diamonds, minks and exotic vacations, Mary Kay's pink Cadillac is undoubtedly the most sought-after prize. The first time a pink Cadillac was ever given as an award was in 1969. Barbara Stimach joined Mary Kay Cosmetics in May 1975 and became a sales director in February 1978. Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc. is an international manufacturer and distributor.

Portland is honeymoon destination for Bryans

The marriage of Andrea Catherine St. Jean and Paul Alan Bryan was solemnized July 17 at Trinity Episcopal Church with The Rev. Robert Schiesler presiding at the four o'clock rite.

Double ring vows were repeated by the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. St. Jean of Post Oak Drive, West Bloomfield, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. David L.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL A. BRYAN

Bryan of Castle Drive, Romulus.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gown in sheer polyester knit chiffon designed in the empire mode. The cap-sleeved bodice featured a high illusion neckline with lace applique accents and a skirt terminating in a deep flounce.

Her chapel-length veil of nylon netting was caught to a little headdress of lace and simulated pearls and her bouquet was comprised of cascading white roses, gardenias and English ivy.

Schiffli embroidery embellished the apricot polyester knit gown worn by the matron of honor, Mrs. Kim Norton of Jackson.

Attendants in identical maize or apricot ensembles included Jackie Bryan and Lisa Bryan, sisters of the bridegroom from Romulus; Mrs. Perry (Connie) Johnson of Birmingham; and two sorority sisters of the bride, Sarah Thomsen of Ludington and Cindy Yerkie of Northville.

Youngsters in the bridal coterie were Jimmie Jamieson, 10; Jenny Jamieson, eight; Ethan Bordman, 13, and Rachel Bordman, 10.

The bridegroom asked his brother, Keith Bryan, to serve as best man. Groomsmen were Tom Norton of Jackson; Tom Pohl of St. John; Steve Sims of Mt. Pleasant; Robert Sirhan of Romulus; and Al St. Jean of West Bloomfield, the bride's brother.

At the reception which followed at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Wayne, the 220 guests were greeted by Mrs. Bryan in a formal gown made with a white bodice and lavender skirt. A mint green polyester gown was the choice of the bridegroom's mother. Both were honored with corsages of silk roses to match their outfits.

Following a two-weeks honeymoon in Portland, Oregon the newlyweds took up residence in Houston, Tex. where both are employed; she by the Springbranch Independent School District and he by the Southland Corporation.

The new Mrs. Bryan graduated from Central Michigan University with a degree in special education for the emotionally impaired. A member of Sigma Kappa sorority, she is a Navigators Christian Volunteer for Special Olympics Fellowship and also is a member of the Council for Exceptional Children.

Her husband holds a bachelor of science degree in psychology and biology and a master of arts in counselor education and personal development from CMU. He, too, is a volunteer for the Special Olympics and was affiliated with the Big Brother Program, His House Christian Fellowship and the CMU Country Dancers while in college.

The David Bryans entertained at a backyard cookout following the rehearsal.

Trinity Episcopal site of double ring vows

Trinity Episcopal Church was the setting for the recent ceremony which united Joyce Ann Hagerman and Clay Alan Parraghi in holy matrimony. Double ring vows were exchanged before The Rev. Robert A. Schiesler at six in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hagerman Sr. of Bemis Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Parraghi of Savage Road, all Belleville, are parents of the young couple who now reside at 46070 Lake Villa Dr., Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. CLAY A. PARRAGHI

Escorted to the altar by her parents, the bride appeared in a traditional white gown designed with a sweetheart neckline and high lace collar above a ruffled illusion neckline. Her full skirt, worn over a hoop featured a ruffled hemline which extended into a cathedral train.

She wore a lace-banded fingertip veil of silk illusion held by a crescent of lace and carried silk white roses, lilies of the valley, baby's breath and fern arranged in a wicker basket.

A lilac qiana gown fashioned with long sheer sleeves and an embroidered illusion bodice was worn by the maid of honor, Denise Grow of Belleville. The white lace fan she held was accented by silk roses in lilac and dusty rose, baby's breath and lilies of the valley.

Bridesmaids in identical dusty rose costumes included Sue Parraghi, and Debi Akers, both sisters of the bridegroom, and Lynn De Bord, all of Belleville.

Flower girl in a pale pink frock topped by a lace pinafore was Jennifer Lynn Hagerman, five, of Wayne. Ringbearer was Ralph Douglas Akers, four of Belleville.

Jeff Owen of Belleville was best man and ushers were John A. Hagerman, Mark W. Parraghi and Bill Parraghi, all brothers of the bridal pair, and Tim Wilson and Woody Francis, all of Belleville.

The Romulus Progressive Hall was reserved for the reception which followed. Some 250 guests were greeted by Mrs. Hagerman in a rose qiana formal gown and Mrs. Parraghi in a lime green organza ensemble. Both were honored with corsages of roses and lilies of the valley to match their dresses.

Two weeks in Tampa and Daytona Beach, Fla. were on the honeymoon itinerary for the bride and bridegroom, graduates of Belleville High and Huron High School, respectively. The new Mrs. Parraghi is employed at Bee Chemical Company in Vellebille and her husband is with Allied Aviation at Detroit Metro Airport.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the young couple at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Nine from Belleville BPW attend San Antonio confab

The 48th National Convention of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. convened for five days in San Antonio, Tex. recently. National officers were elected, a legislative platform was adopted and workshops conducted to benefit the working woman.

National President Phyllis Harrison of Royal Oak received a standing ovation opening night as she called for "a turning point" in the 63-year-old organization. Her strong and vigorous program focuses on the needs of today's women and she challenged the 165,000 membership to learn to play the hard game of politics.

"Working women," she said, "were sold out by a handful of legislators on the Equal Rights amendment. As a result, women will be elected and supported in every possible political position in the land. BPW members must organize, promote and fund Political Action Committees (PAC) in every state. And come November, BPW members will remember their friends and foes as they go to the polls."

Two distinguished service awards were presented, one to Margaret Chase Smith (R) Senator from Maine (1949-73) and to Lynn Cutler, vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Both these outstanding women have been leaders and role models for women in the political arena.

Three beneficial workshops, as well as the San Antonio RiverWalk, dinner aboard a barge on the winding river, the Alamo, a trip across the border to Laredo, Mexico and a visit to the L.B. Johnson Ranch were included along with a tour of the San Jose Mission, King William District, Lone Star Brewery and Breckenridge Park.

Belleville BPW members taking part in the productive week included Sophie Zoller, Helen White, Faye Sotomayor, Bonnie Pavlat, Vira McGrane, Ruth Davis, Irene Christie, Georgia Badgett and Midge Artley.

Quotes worth quoting . . .

By Lee Smith
Suburban Living Editor

A feature in the latest Monthly Detroit magazine — The Lowest Prices on Everything (and where they could be found) — prompted a day-long shopping expedition for the visiting daughter and me last week. Having talked "Y" (youngest) into extending a recent weekend into a week or so, I'd suggested a "cross-country" (that's what it seems from Tecumseh) trip to Tally Hall in Farmington Hills for an experience in "noshing." The fact that a couple of the discount emporiums mentioned in the article were in the adjacent shopping mall made for a two-birds-with-one-stone venture.

And the bargain hunting became secondary once we feasted our eyes on the wonders the Tally Hall genie contained in his magic lamp. But be forewarned, you who might sally forth to the mind-boggling kingdom, — don't do so on an empty stomach as we did. Even the canopies over the booths looked good enough to eat by 10 a.m.

What fun the culinary bazaar is for those who enjoy sampling different foodstuffs (and are there many among us who don't? — save for the terribly finicky few?) For a long time I've wanted to give funnel cake a go and had decided in advance that it would be one of my treats for the day; ergo Warning Number Two: Don't decide on ANYthing in advance!

The sights and smells after a half circle of the place necessitated our orders for early morning brews — raspberry tea for my companion and special perked decaf for yours truly. The nearby pastry booth we'd studied relieved us of a few pennies, too, as we finally opted for a French cruller and freshly-baked blueberry muffin. The pans in which they nestled flanked a tiered pie "Susan" which groaned with mile-high wedges of everyone's favorites: coconut and banana cream, lemon meringue, French silk chocolate, peanut butter cream and etcetera. (Do I have your undivided attention yet?)

Feeling we were now fortified enough to flip through dress racks and try on a few namebrand mark-downs, we double-barreled it through the nationally-advertised store behind Arlene Francis' radio voice and found ourselves loaded down before we thought to ask, "Do you take credit cards?"

After hearing "cash or checks only", just a few choice pieces went into the dressing room with us since our enthusiasm was not matched by cold cash. On agreeing that we'd worn off enough calories by burning all that energy, we returned to T.H. to relax and sit down to lunch.

I forgot to mention that we'd earlier cased each and every offering in the aisles of appetite teasers, and retracing our steps, thought we were prepared to order. We were fooled, however, since now the place was fairly booming with enthusiastic, energetic eaters and we had the additional distraction of sizing up what THEY'D chosen and equating portions and appeal. What a dilemma! EVERYthing looked good and, oh, the aromas!

Only on a visit there yourself will you believe that we made the rounds a couple more times, becoming more indecisive and confused by the minute. You just might be a bit more understanding when you learn that we had Japanese, Greek, Polish, Mexican, Chinese, French and scads of American menus from which to choose. Tempura vegetable kabobs, Buddha pie, gyros sandwiches, gigantic baked potatoes with a selection of some dozen toppings, local steamboat rolls and dinners, made-to-your-specifications salads (fruit or vegetable), croissant sandwiches, pizza-all-ways, pierogis, pasties, quiches, seafood tarts, burritos, enchiladas and all the south of the border fare; the meats, foo youngs and won tons of the Orient; fresh fruit smoothies, cider, non-alkie pina colodas, lemon and limeades; natural ice creams and frozen custards; gigantic cookies, macaroons, French and American pastries, crusty breads and rolls; chocolates, nuts, dried fruit mixes and popcorn a half-dozen ways. Surprisingly, (and refreshingly) hamburgers, hot dogs and French fries were not featured attractions.

A huge produce center at the rear and long showcases of fresh meats, poultry, seafood and deli concoctions along a side wall were well supplied for the afterglow — meals-to-fix-at-home.

Tally Hall proved to be not only a diner's delight and people-watchers' paradise but could well be a rainy day haven when golf is called off, house painting is prevented, lawn and garden work are stymied and window washing is axed. It's a fun way to spend a non-sun day and it's family-oriented so take the kids along (AND a few extra pesos, lira, francs or Yankee dollars.)

(P.S. I still haven't tried funnel cake — they looked fascinating but rather deserty — and as for what we DID choose? We shared a huge baked potato with chili and melted cheddar cheese atop and a fresh fruit compote. Sweets fell by the wayside since "Y" was still demonstrating her willpower and I'd have felt too guilty pigging out on that aforementioned coconut cream pie. Instead, when she wasn't looking, I'd dig stealthily into the sack of trail mix I'd bought earlier.)

TRIVIA ANYONE?

- There are 132 rooms in the White House. (Bed and breakfast, anyone?)
- There were at least 52 musicians in the family of famous composer Johann Sebastian Bach.

THE SIGN OF THE LION

August 8th was celebrity-loaded as far as Hollywood birthdays were concerned, what with six of their own having been delivered on that date. A lady with whom I once had lunch in Detroit when she was promoting her needlepoint, Sylvia Sidney (with 72 years seniority) headed the list which included 60-year-old Rory Calhoun; 59-year-old Esther (the mermaid) Williams; 44-year-old Connie Stevens; 45-year-old Dustin Hoffman and 42-year-old David Carradine. Mel Tillis of Grand Ol' Opry roots was a firm 50.

David Steinburg had Aug. 9 all to himself as he hit the Big Four-Oh. The next day, Aug. 10, the quintet of birthdays belonged to Eddie Fisher and Jimmy Dean, both at 54; Noah Beery Jr., 66; Rhonda Fleming, 59; and our 31st president, Herbert Hoover, who'd have been 108.

Today marks the 54th anniversary of Arlene Dahl's birth. She shares the 11th with Mike Douglas, 57; Lloyd Nolan, 80; and Jane (Father Knows Best) Wyatt, 70.

George Hamilton and Buck Owens were both born Aug. 12 but a decade apart, and will be 43 and 53, respectively. Friday the 13th belongs to an all-male foursome: Neville Brand, who'll turn 61; Pat Harrington Jr. settling in at 53; Gene Raymond at 74 and Buddy (Charles) Rogers at 78.

Closing out the week are character actor Nehemiah Persoff (delivered in Jerusalem) who will have his 62nd birthday Aug. 14 the same day Susan St. James turns 36 and Alice Ghostley, 20 years her senior, reaches 56.

THE BOTTOM LINE: Father Time and Mother Nature are compatible, not competitive, but in the human race Father Time is bound to win.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM M. BARBONE

Mr. and Mrs. Don Dickerson Jr. of Sumpter Road, Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Barbone of Saratoga Road, Stratford, N. J. are parents of the bridal pair.

Holding a cascade of white orchids, pink bellflowers and baby's breath backed with philodendron leaves, the bride was presented in marriage by her father. For her wedding day she selected a white chiffon gown styled with accordion pleated cape sleeves, a choker neckline frosted with Venice and Schiffli lace on the illusion insert and a pleated flounced hemline secured by matching lace.

Completing her bridal finery was a tilt-brimmed lace hat with veiling and wisps of chiffon trailing from a chiffon rose cluster.

Maid of honor was Brenda Pifer of Ypsilanti, who donned an aubergine-colored qiana gown fashioned with an accordion pleated empire bodice, high neckline and off-shoulder elbow-length capelet. Sheer voile and flowers trimmed the hat she wore while mauve azaleas, pink bellflowers and white roses made up her colonial-style bouquet.

Bridesmaids in identical gowns in a suede rose shade were Donna Frost of Belleville and Cathy Barbone of Stratford, N. J., sister of the bridegroom.

Kelly Easley, four, was her aunt's flower girl in sheer white voile and a nephew, 3-year-old Matthew Dickerson, performed as ringbearer.

Beirut - it concerns each and everyone of us

Over ten years ago, the PLO, in alliance with Syria, attacked the Jordanian government. After a pitched battle, including massive Syrian tank formations, the Syrians and the PLO were defeated.

The PLO was kicked out of Jordan. Then the PLO, those wonderful folks who added murder and kidnapping as unscheduled events in the 1972 Munich Olympic Games, squatted in Lebanon.

From Lebanon, the PLO launched attacks on Israeli civilian settlements. The PLO succeeded in instigating a civil war in Lebanon, demolishing most of the country, including Beirut.

Syria got into the act, apparently hoping to annex some or all of Lebanon's territory eventually.

For over six years, the PLO continued to attack Israeli civilians, raiding from Lebanese territory. Allied PLO terrorists perpetuate a series of outrages against Israelis and others in Europe and elsewhere. The latest such outrage was an attempted assassination of an Israeli diplomat in Europe.

Fed up with such terrorism, and failure of diplomatic efforts of the U.S. and others to curb PLO terrorism, Israel decided to defend itself from this activity. It launched a full scale invasion of Lebanon to clear out the Syrian missile sites and curb the PLO capacity to attack Israeli civilians.

The invasion stopped short of West Beirut, where the PLO has holed up. For a month, the PLO has used innocent Lebanese civilians in West Beirut as hostages. Israel has withheld the final assault on the last sanctuary of the PLO. Arab governments have refused sanctuary to the "freedom fighters".

Meanwhile, the American government, under Ronald Reagan, (1) continues fruitless "negotiations" with the terrorists through a third party; (2) officially deplores the fate of the innocent Beirut civilians; and (3) taps Israel on the wrist by delaying arms shipments because Israel used cluster bombs as "offensive weapons".

In the Beirut affair, it apparently has never occurred to Reagan that the effective way of handling the PLO would be a denial of any diplomatic support for any Palestinian autonomy in Israeli held territory so long as the PLO continues to engage either in terrorist activity or to hold innocent civilians as hostages. Instead, Reagan is moving in a direction of offering the PLO incredible diplomatic gains as a reward for holding the innocent Lebanese civilians in Beirut as hostages.

Undoubtedly, Israel (1) will soon clean out the PLO from Beirut; and (2) some more innocent Lebanese civilians will be killed by both the Israelis and the PLO. The American government will succeed in alienating both legitimate Arab governments and Israel while coddling the PLO terrorist. Ronald Reagan will have added another glorious chapter to the story of his Administration's successes in foreign affairs, already having achieved interesting results with supporting "improvement" in the police state of El Salvador; doing nothing substantive to help Polish Solidarity; alienating everybody in the gas pipeline to Europe; and alienating everybody in the Falklands comedy.

The affinity of Reagan for terrorists in the Middle East, murdering dictators in Latin America, and jailers of union leaders in Eastern Europe, is apparently unlimited. How this benefits the American government or the American people is a mystery.

Why are W-W school board members targets of recall?

Why are the four Wayne-Westland School board members being recalled?

It is not because they have committed an "act of misfeasance, malfeasance, or nonfeasance" (the usual charges levied against a member to be recalled) but that out of the thousands of decisions they make in a year recall supporters say that these four board members voted wrong on the community college issue and the teacher pay increase.

Even though both of these decisions have either been shelved (the community college issue) or nullified (teachers have accepted a wage freeze) recall supporters push on. Why?

I suspect that the four Board members have become scapegoats by Wayne-Westland residents who are frustrated over high taxes.

If this is true, then is the solution to replace these four Board members?

I believe the recall is unwise for four reasons: (1) — We may see the beginning of periodic purges of the school board every time board members don't satisfy the concerns of any organized group;

(2) — If the recall succeeds these four Board members may be replaced with four inexperienced new Board members. I don't want a majority of the Board gaining experience in the job at the expense of our children's education;

(3) — If the new Board makes decisions that lead to havoc and chaos what will this do to our property values? I don't want homes in Wayne-Westland to be devalued as they have been in Taylor;

(4) — It is expensive to hold this election. It will cost approximately $30,000 to hold this recall election and if the four members are recalled it will cost another $30,000 to hold an election to replace them.

I find this a rather ironic situation in that many recall supporters want to recall the four Board members because they feel these four members are wasting their money and yet they think nothing of wasting a possible $60,000 on this election and a possible subsequent election to elect new members to replace the four.

In conclusion, I believe that the recall must be defeated on September 14 because the four Board members have done nothing wrong. They have served our district in good faith and while no one can satisfy all of the people all of the time I believe they have served the best interests of our fine school system. The stakes are too high in this election to vent one's frustration over high taxes by retaliating against these four good public servants. I urge you to consider voting against the recall.

Thoughts about elections

Tom Mooradian
Managing Editor

(Managing Editor Tom Mooradian is on vacation this week and will be back at his desk on Monday. The following column was published last month. It is his thoughts on politicians and elections).

You know that it's election time. The tension is in the air. It's like the great expectations just before curtain time. At the Bolshoi. Or the Met.

And, as you watch the characters play out their roles — their furor, almost religious dedication to what they doing, you wonder if the prize is worth it.

Broadhead obviously didn't think so. The 17th Congressional District representative had a lot to reveal about the inner sanctums of Washington. There is just no time and peace for the elected official. I have said it in the past, and I will reiterate it here — only masochists seek political office.

And the bubble bursts for most immediately after being sworn in.

Meeting-after-meeting. People to talk to, with and over. Try to make them understand. Don't try to make them understand. Avoid them. Compromise.

The world of politics is at best a world of images like ice taken from the refrigerator, instantly shattered.

To reach the goal of elected official, it appears, everything is permissible. Promise. And make it bigger than the opponent's. If he's going to cut taxes 5 percent; you had better cut them 10; if he's going to get a million dollar grant from Washington; you had better make it a billion.

It is a drama that borrows on a tragedy. But why do we seem to laugh at all these events, after all, most affect our lives. Isn't that why we have to pay more than half of our wages toward some kind of tax? Isn't that why our schools are existing on hand-outs? Isn't that why we talk of trillion dollar deficits instead of values.

Who can the passive observer turn to for advice. Are the 75 percent who refuse to go to the polls smarter than the 25 that do?

Look at the next page and read of those who seek answers to questions from elected officials. They represent only a small portion of those who are concerned. They feel like the bull charging into the sharpened sword of the political matador.

It's election time. May I urge those seeking office NOT to speak in the symbolism of the above column.

Tell us in plain English what you hope to accomplish in office.

Convince us. And we'll vote for you.

Election reform — no easy feat

By BERNARD F. HILLENBRAND

Burke County, Ga., has never elected a black county commissioner although a majority of its residents are black.

Last month the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a lower court order that the county replace its "at large" system of electing officials with district representation. While the ruling does not go beyond the new amendments to the Voting Rights Act, it may bring other suits against counties, and stimulate more court-ordered election revision.

This is unfortunate, since one system is no more discriminatory than the other — when administered by well-meaning officials. Municipalities that elect officials from districts have also been sued to bring about minority representation.

Election reform is no easy feat, as we have seen during Congressional reapportionment. But there are real differences between the two systems. They are too often overlooked in the name of civil rights.

Georgia, for example, is one of 12 states that permit localities to select either system, although most hold at-large elections. "I suspect counties will not voluntarily come forward to change their laws," says Jay Ricketts of the Georgia Association of Counties. "Because Georgia is among 22 states whose election procedures are automatically reviewed by the U.S. Department of Justice. It is a long and grueling process. I think they'll wait until they get taken to court."

In contrast, some local governments are modernizing election procedures before they're forced into it. The citizens of Summit County, (Akron) Ohio, for instance, are involved in an on-going dialogue. Last year they adopted a new form of government. A three-member commission was replaced by an elected county executive and seven-member council. The charter commission reviewed election options before deciding that officials would continue to represent the entire community.

According to Elizabeth DeBruin, county director of planning; the citizens felt a fight over district lines might prevent approval of the charter.

Now citizens have again stepped forward to request election by district. Two communities have passed resolutions supporting the change.

"As I go around the county, people ask 'Who represents me? Who will bring my problems before the council?' " says Executive John R. Morgan. "I recommend they consult the member who lives nearby. As a matter of fact, council members have an area they feel loyal to, even though they represent the entire community. Akron residents support Akron. Former township trustees vote together on issues such as annexation."

It is too early to tell if district representation will be on the fall ballot in Summit County. But such change is likely to be debated for a long time. "I believe the public supports this," Morgan says. His plan calls for dividing the county into six districts with an additional three council members elected at large.

Summit County won local control of elections when its new charter was approved by the state. But only 99 of the nation's 3,106 counties have home rule. In 16 states local governments must have district representation. In 20 others, at-large elections are the law.

Political scientists see benefits to both systems. At-large elections prevent legislators from only defending neighborhood interests. It eliminates gerrymandering, for there is no need to draw and redraw district lines as population shifts. At-large elections tend to promote stability and unity in government, and encourages officials to consider problems from a county-wide perspective.

In some counties, candidates run for a specific seat on the county board that represents their district of residence — and then the entire county votes for them. This procedure guarantees all geographic areas of the county will be represented, but the election can be won by someone who fails to carry the home district, as has occurred in Baltimore County, Md., on occasion.

Election by district assures each district will be represented by the person of its choice. Constituents have the opportunity to know their representatives. And, in the case of Burke County, it is more likely minorities will be represented.

"It seems the larger a county gets, the more its needs district representation," says Howard County, Maryland's elected Executive Hugh Nichols. "District officials are also less suspect of political machinery." His county voted against a district plan in 1976. Nichols suspects the issue will rise again.

Election by district has disadvantages, too. "The system required continuing attention to boundaries," says Gary Greenhalgh of the U.S. Federal Elections Commission. "There are practical administrative problems in making sure the right people get the right ballot. However, computers can help a great deal. In a well-run county, election administration is not insurmountable."

Other critics say district representation promotes ward politics, port barreling and gerrymandering. They fear special interests prevent commissioners from taking a long-range look at problems such as water resource management, road repair, school closings and economic development.

Recent charters, therefore, have often created new systems. The Weld County, Colo., board, for example, now has five council members. Three are from districts and two at large. The compromise theory is that citizens still have council members to identify with while at-large members prevent parochialism.

It is wise policy, as Supreme Court Justice John P. Stevens has written, "to accelerate the transition of minority groups to a position of political power commensurate with their voting strength... The record in this case amply supports the conclusion that governing officials of Burke County repeatedly denied black citizens rights guaranteed by the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments."

This ruling reinforces the new, more liberal amendment to the Voting Rights Act. Both measures will make it easier for minorities to overturn election laws. Under the old law, it had to be proven county officials intended to discriminate. Under the new law, intent need not be proven.

As important as it is, ending racial discrimination is only one facet of the election reform. Most of the nation's counties must periodically reconsider the responsibility vested in their elected officials. And they should not wait until the courts tell them to do so.

Acts of vandalism

EDITOR — Sometime during the last week of July acts of vandalism took place in Belleville's Horizon Park which stretches for three blocks between High Street and the lake.

A heavy knife or hatchet was used to chop into the trunks of eight of the young highbred black locust trees, or had patches of bark, some as large as a man's hand, stripped off their trunks. These trees are ten to twelve feet high with two inch trunks, thus this damage is quite serious.

One of the redbud trees had one of its four large branches broken off with the bark stripped more than a foot down the trunk. A young arborvitae tree was ripped out of the ground.

Horizon Park was conceived in 1976 as part of the Bicentennial Program. It was wasteland grown up to weeds and brush. It was then graded and filled, planned and planted by a landscaping company, benches were provided, grass planted and a sprinkling system installed to cover the full length of the park.

It is important for Belleville taxpayers to know that all of this was done with donated funds. The curbing and storm drains were funded by block grant money, not Belleville tax dollars. The labor for installing the sprinkler system was entirely by the Park Commission who serve without pay.

Today the cost to the City is minimal, mainly the sprinkling water and lawn care.

Horizon Park with its spectacular view is a major community asset. Please notify the police if you observe questionable behavior in the park.

'Nite club' in residential area

EDITOR — May we appeal to you and the residents of Westland for help and support us in protecting our rights. We are Westland residents residing on Merriman, south of Cherry Hill. "Special Approval" is being sought to put a "Nite Club" into the existing Golf-o-Tron Building at 450 Merriman Rd.

This existing building is across the street from our residential area and Grace Moravian Church.

They want to turn a "re-creational building" into a "Country Western Bar."

Teen-agers walk by this establishment on Merriman Road drawn to the business known as "Roscoes" only a few yards away in Cherry Hill Shopping Place.

We Citizens feel that a "nite club", "Country Western" or "Hillbilly Bar," will create a dangerous situation for these children who have to walk in front of this establishment.

This "Nite Club" would have a seating capacity of 400 plus and a parking capacity of 200 plus. We feel that Merriman Road cannot properly handle this additional traffic along an already busy thoroughfare.

We the Citizens of Westland or residents of Birch Hill Estates do not believe that a "Nite Club" or "Western Country," or "Hillbilly Bar" should be allowed across the street (on what was once public lands) from a quiet residential neighborhood.

We feel that a business such as the type being proposed for this site should be in a commercial area and fronted toward other commercial property and not residential. To the best of our knowledge, "No Bar" fronts Residential Property, in our city.

Westland residents your Merriman Road neighbor's need your support. "We appeal to you Citizens of Westland, help support us here on Merriman Road, South of Cherry Hill.

"Come to the Council Meeting."

Politics and promises

EDITOR — Your editorial on voting and The Other Side of the Meridian column concerning politicking was neat, however, I tried sticking to the facts, not promising anything more than I could hope to deliver, and all it got me was hung by others who generalize, brag about their action ten years ago when the county income was $80 million more, and promise to fire the road commissioners.

I meticulously prowled through the files for facts, discussed ideas with department heads, and carefully explained to senior citizens groups that I appreciated their invitation to talk on social security, medicaid and transportation but that I had nothing to do with these programs and would be wasting their time. The others attended, promised them the moon and left these folks with false hopes.

Many people listen and believe what these politicians say, and deciding to run instead of sitting by the side of the road has been an experience. It's a heck of a lot different than writing the baloney, taking the politico's pictures and providing speeches.

I've kept away from mudslinging, hanging signs on telephone poles and badgering people to help I guess if I ever run for office again I'll know what not do do.

On foster homes and mental health

EDITOR — Just recently Secretary of Health and Human Services Richard Schweiker proposed new regulations that would minimize the requirements for nursing home inspections.

The changes would involve cancelling annual inspections to once every three years for those facilities with good records and only every two years for the others. In addition, the 90 day follow-up inspections for poorly rated facilities would be eliminated.

As a gerontologist in the Inks-ter area, I am infuriated that Mr. Schweiker should feel that the place to save money is on the backs of the ages and disabled in nursing homes. Although it is possible for concerned agencies to have ombudsman programs to act as advocates for these people the Federal Government has been the only authority to protect this helpless segment of our population from abuse and negligence.

I strongly urge every family with a patient in some type of nursing or convalescent home to write Mr. Schweiker or their Congressmen. Regular nursing home inspection and follow-up is imperative. We certainly owe our nursing home patients that minimum protection.

More opinions on foster care

EDITOR — We are a staff of people who work daily with 72 adults with mental retardation who are 26 years of age and older and in this community. Our years of experience ranges up to 23 years, with an average of over 8½ years.

Having worked in the field of mental health does not automatically guarantee that we will not have any prejudices towards persons with handicaps, but we have come to know them as individuals, with unique problems and needs. We may dislike an individual but cannot accept any statements which seem to condemn persons as a group.

We are the people who are in direct service; who, to coin a phrase used in a recent letter to this newspaper, are there for the NOW behavior and we do not sit in offices. We are the people who deal with the day to day joys, fears, and needs of these adults while guiding their efforts to develop work skills to their highest potential.

We accept the mentally retarded person at the level at which they function and work from there. We do not say that everyday is a bed of roses, but we do not see any of our people as someone to be feared or someone we absolutely would not like to have as a neighbor.

We totally disagree with an opinion expressed in a recent letter written to the editor of this publication, July 22, 1982, which links mental retardation and schizophrenia. It also states that any mental deficiency, in the writer's opinion, and whatever the cause (congenital, chemistry imbalance, or senility), equates with mental illness behaviorally. If this were the standard of the world, would not all of us fall short at sometime in our lives and possibly be termed mentally ill?

We feel sad to think there are those among us who work professionally with persons with mental retardation and can still say such harmful things about them as a group.

We know what a hard battle has been fought through the years to establish services. It has been a difficult task just to get the public to realize that when a person's mind and/or body does not function perfectly he is no less in need of training.

academics, entertainment, and a loving home atmosphere.

The ultimate answer to our "not so perfect" population is not to lock them away from our sight, but to give them room to develop just as we did. We realize in some cases there is a need of hospitalization or a separate living situation away from one's family.

What's to say this should always be in an institution? Group homes have been established throughout the area and statistics will bear out the lack of incidence of problems caused in the neighborhoods. Only the outrageous things get publicized just as it does with all of us, "normal" or mentally retarded. This may possibly be a little of our fault for not telling the story of our law-abiding, hardworking, maybe a little boring, and average citizen. The story could be about one of our adults in our program as well as that of John Doe.

It seems we do not need to fear persons with handicaps, but maybe they should fear us. They do not burn or vandalize our homes, but someone has done this to their homes. They come to our neighborhoods full of joy of a new experience, with a smile on their faces ready to accept us. Why is it so hard for us to return the same friendly smile and go from there? Why must we fear that of which we are not so knowledgeable?

The writer of the aforementioned letter to editor is not being asked to bring any persons home, but to share the neighborhood and community opportunities. We are aware of many success stories, persons who have their first chance to live in the community after maybe 40 years in an institution, persons who never had the opportunity to know what a "normal" life should be, much less live that role.

Out of 72 persons in our program, 22 have a history of institutionalization, with an estimated 400 years of bondage totally. Twenty-three now reside in residential group homes in our neighborhoods and are model citizens in most all they do. They appreciate being able to live with you.

We greatly resent fear-mongering and would ask that people accept a human being who is equal to us in value and only lacks in mental aptitude or somewhat in physical abilities. Has he or she not already been deprived of abilities you would not like to lose? Would we deprive him of a home as well? If we expect people to act intelligent, loving, sensible and well-mannered, then is it not our responsibility to do the same for them?

It is not fair to generalize about "mentally deficient" persons by implying that they are a living bomb just waiting to explode at anytime. This is an individual trait found in all kinds of people.

We are ready to defend the value of residential living as opposed to institutional if only because we have seen the difference and know what we ourselves would prefer. Freedom and self reliance gains are being made when the opportunity is there. And why do our property values drop or do they really? If they do, is this not due to our own attitudes and overreaction? Are we creating a negative environment without at least giving a positive one a chance to grow? Are we all fearful in our ignorance by expecting the worst? How do we know the quality of our neighbors until we have had an opportunity to live near them?

What we fail to realize is that in many instances it is our own negative attitudes which may be the greatest limitation disabled people face. It is unfair to individuals to stereotype and project a negative image of citizens who are disabled.

Growing up normal-that's bad

This morning I was sitting in the middle of the morning newspaper, ignoring the orange juice creeping across the table, instinctively finding the crack to drip through. It was the same scene that has been re-enacted for many years in my house, only this morning it was a grandson tiptoeing on the orange juice exactly as his uncles had tiptoed so long ago.

And sure enough, there in the newspaper was an article that I swore I had read many years ago and one which had made me go to the typewriter and which was making my typing fingers itch this morning.

The article which was titillating my fancy was one entitled, "Growing up normal, that's bad," he says.

I remember when I first read that article. It struck me as a bit on the crazy side then, and now umpteen years later it still strikes me as crazy.

The article said that a little kid named Larry is a bad kid because he kicks his mom in the supermarket but the author wasn't necessarily worrying about the badness of Larry as he was worrying about whether Larry's mom should whack that kid across the butt. The author, who has become an authority at 34 years of age, says the mom shouldn't whack the kid unless she wants him to grow up normal. Growing up normal can ruin a kid's psyche, the author says, and stifle his creativity ... or words to that effect.

Well, I don't know how you feel about it, but I feel that anyone that has only 34 years tucked under his belt, and just two little kids barely out of wet pants doesn't have the foggiest about the real world of raising kids.

But then I'm pretty open-minded and I remembered that one time I, too, had lofty ideas about raising kids. Somewhere between the first and sixth I just threw the ideas out of my head and went to it by the seat of their pants.

The young author said that when kids misbehave the parent should try to determine what the kid really wants the parent to say to him, and not just go whacking away.

Well, he may have a point there. Take the time that one of my kids came home from school all excited about the annual 'cleanup, paint up, fix up' week that our town enjoys each spring. He hitched up his little old britches and went racing out the back door and I didn't hear a peep from him until I noticed our backyard neighbor having a fit of apoplexy all over the alley.

And there stood my little kid staring down at him with a dripping paintbrush dripping green paint all over the neighbor's red face.

After tucking the baby under the table where he could chew on the chair rungs, I flew outside where I leaned over to help the apoplectic neighbor. But he slapped my hand away and began to bawl.

"What's he bawlin' about?" I asked my little kid.

"I dunno," he answered. "I never seen anyone bawl when someone is just helping him get cleaned up and painted up."

"Painted!" my neighbor belated. "Painted? He has smeared the whole place with that filthy green paint. You better get him out of here because I'm going to kill him.... KILL HIM...."

Naturally I grabbed my kid, paint and all and lugged him out of the killer's reach.

"What possessed you?" I asked calmly enough, and at that point would have probably earned our young author's blessing, if had been born yet. But then the kid tripped and dumped the whole pal of green paint all over my sandals, and that blew my patience. I turned that little old kid upside down and whacked away until all of my frustration was done away with.

And do you know... that kid has never lifted a paint brush since, which is about as normal as a kid can get.

And during the years as I looked around at what needed painting maybe I would have had to concede that the young author might have been right. I should have found out what my kid wanted me to do that long ago day, and I might had closets full of green sandals, which isn't normal as anyone can tell you.

But my kid wouldn't have had to go through the rest of his life with the stigma of normalcy attached to him.

Rhetoric and Reality

I've been away from the city for three weeks now. Time enough to truly appreciate (if that's the right word) how, here in the city, my senses are being assaulted on an alarmingly regular basis.

Out in the country there is no Mel Farr, Superstar. (For a far better deal—See, I know the words... but would I buy a car from the fast-talking ex-football star? Only if he promised never, never, never to sell cars via the tube again.) Out in the country there is—by choice—no television. I haven't watched the afternoon soaps in three weeks and who cares what's happening to Erica or Bo or Luke, anyway?

Out in the country there are no superjets heading for the runway 20 feet over my roof. (Well, it seems like 20 feet.) As we came into Marquette on the way back, we saw a jet coming in low over a hilltop. It startled us and we thought, how alien and out of place that big silver bird looked.

Out in the country, there are stars—billions and billions of stars (who said that?), and the sky surrounding them is velvet-black. The tail of our milky way makes a vivid path across the sky, and a manmade satellites streaking from horizon to horizon are common sights.

Looked for Northern Lights this time, but never say any. What a sight they are! Shimmering multi-colored curtains moving lazily up above.

And now that I've come back—on this Monday before the election—I realize that the grandest part of being blissfully oblivious out in the North Country is that I've neatly avoided the millions and millions of words, both written and spoken, that make up campaign rhetoric.

Is it overskill this year or is it just me? Isn't every other radio ad a "good guy's" promise for reform?

And is that last-minute flurry of campaign literature really worth the effort? Could there really be that many voters who haven't made up their minds by the weekend before the election? Will all that paper really help to make up (or change) a person's mind?

I doubt it. People spread their own word. They read the papers. They watch television. The candidates have been questioned ad infinitum. Their view on the important issues of the day are what count, not whose names are on their endorsements, or how much money they have to spend, or what their families look like, or even how clever their copy writers are.

Empty promises are just so much blather to people nowadays. Things promised during the heat of the pre-election fever-pitch have a way of vaporizing into nothingness during the cold light of the long, long term of office.

Things promised during the pre-election heat often, too, have a way of proving embarrassingly infeasible once put to the test.

I don't know — it's almost better not to make promises at all than to make promises you can't keep. But would we vote for a candidate who came to us making no promises other than to try his darndest? What if his darndest was no better than someone else's worst?

How do we decide where rhetoric ends and reality begins? I don't know.

And why is it that when I was up in the North Country not a single one of those questions ever entered my mind?

Why is that?

That settles it. I'm going back to find out why.

A ringer

Wayne retiree is champ again

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

More than 30 years have passed between championships for Frank Reimann of Wayne. Today he again reigns as a champion... thanks to a Father's Day gift from his wife.

Virginia Reimann's present to her husband was a shiny, new pair of 2 1/4-pound steel horseshoes. Soon after, he used the gift to win the Westland Horseshoe Pitching Tournament, held during the city's annual Summer Festival.

A return to the winner's circle didn't happen overnight by any means — Reimann's last victory came in 1941 at a competition in Wayne. Since 1946 he had dropped the activity completely until his wife decided to change all that.

"It (pitching horseshoes) comes back just like swimming," said Reimann in explaining his sudden return to top form. "The people who built the pits at Jaycee Park should be congratulated because they're the best around."

A lifelong Wayne resident, Reimann earned seven varsity letters in football, baseball and track at Wayne High. During that time he also was considered a premier horseshoe pitcher.

"Virginia is my best supporter," said Reimann, a retired carpenter. "She practices with me now. She's a good bowler and from what I've seen, she can throw those horseshoes too."

She also knows how to toss a ringer when it comes to gift selection.

A fine time at Lucille's

By SUE BACHAND
Staff Writer

Two years ago, Anant Patel of Canton didn't know what country music was and he had never been inside a country-western bar — today, Patel owns one of the best-known such establishments in the area, and he has learned to really enjoy the country sound.

Patel is the owner and proprietor of Lucille's, considered by many who really appreciate country Western music to be among the best of the clubs offering such entertainment. Patel purchased the present building on Michigan Avenue while it was a very popular local disco, but by the time closing ownership papers were signed and he took occupancy, it was clear that disco was a thing of the past and country western was the sound patrons were looking for.

To fulfill that need, Patel decided that country-western would be just what he'd offer and he coupled his remodeling efforts with a search for a band that would provide for the needs of the true country music fans.

Patel claims to have found that answer in Jack Mollette and the Boderline Express — the band that has been packing patrons into Lucille's since Patel opened two years ago. And if the critical reviews of local experts are to be believed, Patel's musical judgment was correct indeed.

Appearing with the band is Sally Wright, a female vocalist who has only recently released a single record, "Everything To Me" which was written and produced by Mollette. Mollette, according to Patel, has long been involved in the production of record albums and has album waiting for release very soon (See Lucille's Page B-3)

Fishing costs up

The cost of fishing lures, like everything else, is going up.

Plugs that used to sell for less than a dollar now cost three times their former price. Losing one of these to an underwater snag puts a dent in an angler's wallet, not to mention his tacklebox.

With lures costing so much, fishermen are more inclined to save them when they hang up on stumps, rocks and other unseen debris. There are several ways to go about it but the most effective is to use a manufactured lure retriever.

These devices are slotted to slip over the fishing line, and are usually equipped with short lengths of chain to entangle the lure's hooks. A stout line attached to the retriever lets you pull

Split Enz gaining fans

SPLIT ENZ
(Frenzy)
(A&M)

Split Enz, currently one of the hottest bands to be found anywhere, hail from the unlikely port of New Zealand, which is somewhere around Australia. I think. Anyway, just weeks after their "real" new LP, "Time & Tide" hit the racks, comes "Frenzy."

Why? Because they like you!

People who have discovered Split Enz (and there are a lot of us) know that the band's witty pop songs are like LAY'S potato chips; you always want more. And so we get "Frenzy," half of which is taken from the album of the same name that was released only in their native land, and half of which is previously unreleased "demos", most of which sound at least as good as the legit stuff.

Top tracks include "I See Red" (a big hit in England a few years back), "Mind Over Matter," "Give It a Whirl," and perhaps the best of them all, "Semi-Detached."

With the "Time & Tide" album and the single culled from it, "Six Months In a Leaky Boat," still climbing the charts, it's unlikely A&M will put out a 45 from "Frenzy." But it's a must for fans, and that number is growing in leaps and bounds.

"SUMMER MEANS FUN"
(Columbia)

Every summer, record companies put out compilations of surf and hot rod tunes from days gone by, and every summer I drive around with the car windows down playing them on the car stereo.

After all, this was the first music I ever listened to, and it still sounds awful good. Especially LOUD.

This collection pulls together a lot of little-known gems from Bruce & Terry, The Rip Chords, and a few others. It contains one bonafide big hit, the Rip Chords' classic "Hey Little Cobra," and a rare Jan & Dean cut, "Like Summer Rain," which, as the liner notes say, "makes this album well worth the price of admission into the world of hot rods and surf."

Even Johnny Rivers' version of the Beach Boys' "Help Me Ronda" isn't bad, and it's the album's low point.

New addition

Jim Lyos (center), president of the Tin Lizzie Restaurant in Belleville, recently continued his extensive upgrading of the restaurant's quality food and service with the appointment of George Noble (right) as general manager for sales at the establishment, located off I-94 at Belleville Road. Noble has operated a number of prestigious dining clubs during his

featuring the five-piece Borderline Express.

Mollette has played with the bands accompanying country western stars Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell and many others. He is featured as the lead guitarist on several Mandrell albums.

Becoming the owner and operator of an entertainment facility wasn't exactly what Patel had chosen for a career. Born in Rhodesia, he came to the United States to attend college and earned his engineering degree from Michigan Tech. He also attended the University of Michigan where he obtained his graduate degree in mechanical engineering. After two years as an engineer at Chrysler, however, he became discontent and began looking for a business of his own.

"I like being my own boss although I put in many more hours. I do enjoy it though. I wouldn't change a thing," Patel commented with a smile.

The establishment features sandwiches and light businessmen's lunches at reasonable prices, according to Patel, but the real attraction is the evening live band entertainment. The entertainers begin the first of five 45-minute sets at 9 p.m. and continue until closing at 2 a.m.

In addition, Lucille's features many speciality nights. Sundays, a pitcher of beer is priced at only $3 and Tuesdays are the evenings for 25-cent shells of beer from 10 until 11 p.m.

Wednesdays are ladies nights at Lucille's and women's drinks are 75 cents all evening with 25 cent drinks for women from 10:30 until 11 p.m. and again from 12:30 until 1 a.m.

Thursday all drinks are $1 and on Fridays and Saturdays there is a $2 cover charge.

Lucille's, named from the Kenny Rogers hit, "You Picked A Fine Time To Leave Me, Lucille" is also noted for the number of jamborees held at the establishment to benefit local charities. Patel estimates that his club has earned more than $7,000 for various non-profit groups so far this year.

Lucille's is located at 43711 Michigan Ave. in Canton, one mile west of I-275. The establishment is open Tuesdays through Sundays from 10 a.m. until 2 a.m.

"A fine time," noted Patel, "is guaranteed."

the lure backward and free once it is hooked.

If you don't have a retriever, jiggle the rod tip up and down vigorously while holding the line taut, letting it go slack on each downward move.

If this doesn't shake the hooks loose, move your boat so that the line can be pulled in the opposite direction the lure was traveling when it was snagged.

If the snag is shallow, plunge the rod into the water as far as possible and reel the tip right up to the lure. Then try to push the lure backward with the tip, or holding pressure on the line, work the tip in a circle to dislodge the hooks.

When all else fails, cut the line several feet above the water and tie on a small piece of strofoam as a market. This way, you can return later with a retriever and find the snagged lure.

Twenty-five corps from across the nation and Canada will be competing in the seventh annual Drum Corps International Northern Championships Friday at Eastern Michigan University's Rynearson Stadium. And just to prove that color guard work isn't all flags and rifles, the Seattle Imperials (above) combine a few acrobatics with their work. Preliminary competition begins at 8:30 a.m. with the finals to start at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are priced at $4 (outside the 20 yard lines) and $7 (between the 20 yard lines).

16 teams eye Anderson softball tourney title

Defending champ Carriage House puts crown on block

Carriage House of Redford will place its crown on the block when the 1982 Lenny Anderson Softball Tournament gets underway in Wayne on Friday.

Some 16 teams, including the Continental Jets from Los Angeles, Cal., are eyeing the championship which will be decided during the three-day competitions.

Games will be played Aug. 13-14-15 at the Anderson Memorial Softball Fields in Wayne.

"In the past we have drawn a lot of spectators to these games," said Larry Quartuccio, who is chairman of the tournament committee, made up of Rog Cowell, Dean Minton, Charles Morris and Bill Hughes.

"We have some excellent teams entered in this tourney and it's going to be interesting to see who takes it."

Although the defending champ Carriage House, is favored, the champs will be hard pressed by Joe Thomas of Westland which has a lot of tournament experience under its proverbial belts this year. Also, the team from Los Angeles, the Continental Jets, is expected to be near if not on top of the pack when the tournament is completed.

The first game will get underway at 6:15 p.m. on Friday.

Teams that will see action include: A & J Telestars of Dearborn, Capt. Nemos of Belleville, Carriage House of Redford, Continental Jets of Los Angeles, Cal., Dubin Construction of Oak Park, Esquire Theater of St. Clair Shores, Greg's Emergency Room of Wayne and Jake's Lounge also of Wayne.

Other teams include: Joe Thomas S.C. of Westland, Law Auto of Redford, Little Bill's Trophies of Redford, Don Massey Cadillac of Plymouth, New World of Dearborn Heights, Pittman's Installation of Wayne, Schewe's Collision/Little Bill's of Wayne and Sonar S.C. of Canton.

The tournament is named for Patrolman Leonard Anderson, the first Wayne police officer to die in the line of performing his duty.

Westland 'C' teams head for playoffs

With the playoff season just around the corner, the 1982 Westland Parks and Recreation softball leagues are winding down the regular season.

But before the curtains come down, Newburgh Station boasted a 15-4 victory over Bob's Hide-A-Way in a men's Class B contest. Winning pitcher Ernie Righetti gave up nine hits, including a homer, double and single to Chuck Brooks. Norm Boushaw also checked in with two hits and two runs batted in for the losers.

Righetti helped his cause with a pair of doubles and two RBIs. He also received ample hitting support from Ed Zielke who had four hits, including a homer. Darryl Proctor and Jim Davis each chipped in with two hits.

In other Class B Red Division action, Jakes used 31 hits and scored in all five innings to bury the Great Lakes 27-4 in an abbreviated game called because of the "mercy rule".

Larry Scheffler picked up four hits, three of them going for the distance. He also had seven runs batted in and scored four times. Ron Randolph also clubbed a pair of roundtrippers, while T.C. Wilnot and Jerry Jarvella each had four hits.

Corkie Hayes, who was the winner delivered nine hits, including three singles to Johnny Yonemura, Gary Bowman belted a homer and Gary Swan turned in with a pair of singles for the losers.

Newburgh Station scored three times in the third and fifth innings but it wasn't enough as Master Photo clicked in an 8-6 triumph over their rivals. Bill Crews wasted an over-the-fence homer and two RBIs while teammate Dave Winker had three hits, including a single, double and triple and Randy Temple latched on to two singles for the losers.

Losing pitcher Bill Coleman couldn't stop Ron Staples who hammered a homer over the fence and also had four RBIs. Jerry Cook got to Coleman for three hits, including a double, and four RBIs.

Bob's Place struck for five runs in the first inning and tilted the scoreboard four more times in the third as it edged Bray's 11-7 in their first meeting of the campaign.

Winning hurler Walt Nowak was tagged for three hits, including a double by Rich Lebert. Keith Trudeau and Bill Ronn split four singles.

Loser Red Rize was knocked around for 14 hits, including a homer by Dennis Nowak. Mike Griggs turned in with three RBIs and Tim Perry had a single and a double.

The Latvians scored a 13-1 victory over the Varsity Club with winning pitcher Uldis Sipolis giving up 12 hits. Honk Leich and Brian Davis laced four singles for the losers. Davis, the losing hurler, was tagged for four hits by Chuck White.

Pual Reile, Rick Zarnis and Tim Broze each had three hits for the winners.

Romulus South All-Stars

Huron Merchants capture 'B' title

Opening up a four-game lead over the rest of the field. The Huron Merchants captured the 1982 version of the Romulus Parks and Recreation Class B Women's Softball League Championship.

The champs pounded Five Points Club 12-0 for their 16th win in 18 starts to pull away from their nearest rivals, Angie Country Inn and Airtrans Hustlers who are deadlocked in the runnersup spot. Each has 12-4 records.

Huron erupted for six runs in the sixth inning while pitcher Donna Moore tossed a shutout in their 12-0 triumph over Five Points.

Sharon Wood was "hot" at the plate as she connected for three singles and drove in two runs for the winners. Mates Jan Steel and Karen Scarborough also checked in with two hits and two RBIs. One of Scarborough's hits went for a triple.

Moore gave up a pair of singles to Donna Kitchens while losing hurler Kaye Gondla also singled.

In other Class B action, Angie's went on a hitting and scoring rampage as Mariyn Much scattered three Suburban Oil hits in a 27-0 whitewash of their rivals. Linda Lewallen, Sue Copeland and Sue Stevens accounted for the loser's hits.

Pat Gores, charged with the loss, served up three hits each to Jan Mooman, Jan Pethers and a double and triple to Lisa Bratcher. Mooman, Peters and Bratcher each had two RBIs.

Airtrans Hustlers scored in all five innings as they humbled winless and last place Brooks Cartage 23-5 for their 12th victory of the campaign. Carol King, Beverly Carney and Nancy Wanos each had two hits for the winners while pitcher Jill Smith, who received credit for the victory, was tagged for eight.

Rhonda Presson, Pat Davidson and Carol Plateau accounted for three of the Brooks' safeties.

Wayne champs win big

Coasting to three easy victories last week, The Gang proved to be the class of the 1982 Wayne Parks and Recreation Over 35 Men's Softball League.

The three wins lifted the league-leaders to a 10-1 over-all record and the championship. Their 10-1 mark was two victories better than the runner, Knights of Columbus.

The champs humbled Ernie's 38-7, then destroyed Mic Dajos, 27-5, and also posted a 13-3 victory over Jakes.

Erupting for eight runs in the first inning thanks to Ron Brock's bat, the Gang was out of Jake's reach early in the game. Brock, who was the winning pitcher, stroked a single, double and triple and drove in three runs to help his cause.

Jake's Tom Wilnot paced the losers with a double and triple and two RBIs.

Scoring 10 times in the second inning and pounding out a total of 39 hits, The Gang dominated Ernie's 33-7 earlier in the week. Almost every member of the champ's team managed to get a homer. Brock laced three singles and clubbed a homer and also chased in five runs in the victory.

Gary and Bud Brock combined for eight RBIs in The Gang's 27-5 lopsided victory over Mic Dajos.

Second best in the west

Losing the championship game to the Red Sox 1-0, the Reds finished second best in the American League West this season in the Wayne Ford Civic League. Members of the team include: Duane Briski, Matt Hicks, Brian Briski, Danny Kondron, Bradley German, Allen August and Scott Complin; second row are Harold Rankey, Brian Chielewski, Pat Kogdron, David Zajac, Tim Kurschke, and Randy Berent; third row are manager Tim German, and coaches Paul Briski, David Zajac and Jerry Koydron. The Reds posted wins over the Indians, 11-4; Cardinals 5-1 and the Mets 11-9 in the playoffs.

Romulus women's softball

Puffer Red wins playoffs

An 8-run fifth inning lifted Puffer Red to a 13-4 victory over archrivals, Total Petroleum, and the 1982 Romulus Class A Women's Softball Championship last week.

The two teams ended the regular season with identical 14-4 overall record therefore necessitating the extra game.

After two scoreless innings, Puffer Red launched its attack on losing pitcher Diana Kampen as the champs scored four runs and never looked behind. Kampen gave up 13 hits, including a roundtripper to Tina Gray who accounted for three runs batted in. Priscilla Gray chipped in with three hits.

Rhonda Harris and Theresa Gibson each had two hits for the winners who are also favored to win the playoff championships.

Total collected six hits off of winner Sandy Holliday who gave up a three-bagger to Mary Day. Debbie Reynolds and Karen Day each had run-scoring singles.

In other Romulus softball action, the third place Silver Bar upset league-leading Brooks & Perkins 12-2 in the Clas B men's resident league. Brooks, with a 11-2 record, now is in jeopardy of handing over the first place berth to either Waltz Garage or Silver Bar, which are 12-3 and 12-4 respectively.

Silver Bar racked up a 12-0 advantage after four complete innings as Brooks failed to hit with men on the bases. The loser collected a total of 13 safeties for their five runs. Jerry Kittle had his problems with Rick Facione who led the winner's assault with three singles. Mark Bratcher and Jerry Seweda each had two hits and two RBIs.

Scott Knight, the winner, gave up a homer, double and single to Mel Allen while Larry Sheffer laced a pair of singles and a double and Rick Wyowski had two singles.

Last place Middlebelt Bar picked up its third victory of the campaign at the expense of the All-Star Excavating, 4-2. Glenn Wiper was the winning pitcher as he scattered six hits, including a single and triple apiece to Dave Phillips and Ron Modzewski.

Rick Cickowski was the lower. He was tagged for a pair of hits by Doug Walls and Mike McBride while Wiper helped his own cause with three singles.

Charlie Copland homered and singled for the winners while Chuck Morris collected two singles. For Pittman's, Don Gibson's pair of singles and RBI paced the losers.

Jerry Holbrook's homer and single lifted Schewe's to a 7-0 victory over Star Optical which wound up the 1982 campaign with a 4-16 overall record. Bill Hughes latched on to two singles for the winners. Bob Taylor drilled two — both singles — of the Star's five hits.

Star, however, made Schewe's sweat for its 13-8 victory earlier in the week. Star got on the board in the first inning and held a 4-3 lead after two innings before Schewe's broke it open with a 5-run surge in the third.

Larry Holt and Jerry Holbrook split six hits — all singles — and six RBIs between them — and Morris also banged two singles for the winners.

Kevin McMillion and Bob Taylor each laced three hits and Ed Wagenbatt got a pair of doubles and a single for the losers.

In other Class A confrontations, Pittman's turned back Metro 5-4 as the losers outhit their rivals 14-10. Bob Pickney hammered a pair of homers and singles, while Wayne Hamilton and Steve Bird each collected two hits for the losers.

Mike Killenbeck clubbed a homer, and single for the winners.

Greg's Emergency scored 13 times in the bottom of the six to bury Pittman's 19-2 in their final encounter of the season. Gary Bowman came up with a roundtripper and single for the winners. Mates Gary Knapp and Ron Reid had three and two hits, respectively.

Reid also laced four hits, including a triple as Greg's destroyed Metro Merchants 20-3. Bowman and Bud Daniels homered for the winners. Bowman collected four hits and drove in four runs and Daniels checked in with three hits and four RBIs.

Keith Drake missed hitting for the cycle.

Metro's Tom Golgoyle had a double and a triple, accounting for two of the team's five hits.

In a rematch, Greg's hammered out 18 hits to beat back Metro 12-2 as Chuck Pierson connected for a homer, triple and single to lead the winners. Dean Minton, Reid and Bob Forgault each had two hits.

Metro's Jim Hubbs belted three singles.

A six-run third inning was the difference in Jake's 9-3 victory over Star Optical. Gary Truskowski and Ron Bernard combined for five of the winner's 12 hits. Dusty Pearce laced three singles for the losers.

In other Class A games, Pittman's knocked out 13 hits as Robert Lindon tripled and singled in an 8-1 win over last place Perkin's Engines (2-18). Pittman's also registered a 12-6 victory over Perkins after the two teams exchanged four-run first innings.

Metro's climaxed a hectic week with a 17-run rally in the top of the sixth to overpower Star, 28-5.

Over 30 picks officers for '82 hockey year

Bob Murray was elected as president of the Wayne-Westland Over 30 Hockey Association Board of Directors in elections held last week. Also serving on the Board of Directors are Howard Flemming, Perry Toepfer, Pat Brown, Tim Vanderburgh and Conrad Madaleno.

Dave Frankling, treasurer; and Ed Spontack, director of player personnel.

The new slate of officers who will serve during the 1982-83 season also include: Ray Ericksen, vice-president; Terry Boote, secretary;

Dolphins capture WYAA title

After compiling an over-all 10-2 won-lost record, the Westland Youth Athletic Association Central East Divisional Champion, the Dolphins went on to capture the WYAA city championship by defeating the National Division representative, Cherokees, 8-3, and 13-8 in a best two out of three series. Team members include: Lisa Jones (first row, from left),

Westlander Rick Roland runs for speed record

Westlander Rick Roland feels he has a shot at breaking the world's closed course stock car qualifying speed record of 200.642 mph.

As you ask yourself, "Rick who?" consider that this past May in qualifying for the Talladega at Alabama International Motor Speedway, Roland earned the pole position with a run of 197.485 mph. "You run about five miles an hour faster at Talladega than Daytona, so we weren't totally surprised by the 197," said Roland (he had qualified at 190.488 for the Daytona ARCA 200 in February). "It's not at all out of the question that we could run over 200 in July."

The 30-year-old Roland does not oversee a racing effort employing full-time crews to maintain a stable of machines. Rather, Roland Brothers Heating and Air Conditioning, a family-owned and operated business, is responsible for financing and maintaining the 1977 Pontiac Ventura that the Westland driver pilots.

"It's good to see a guy like Rick put forth such an effort to go for this record," said AIMS Director of Public Relations Jim Freeman. "It brings to mind independents like James Hylton and Dave Marvics winning the Talladega 500 — it's what makes racing great."

Roland acknowledges his independent/underdog status.

"One unique aspect of our ability to run at these speeds is that we don't have the finances to go down to Talladega with two or three engines," said Roland.

"Ideally, we'd like to set up a motor just to qualify then pull it and replace it with an engine for the race. The motor is the answer, and that translates into money and sponsors. As of right now, we're going down ready to race — one setup for both qualifying and the 200-miler."

Roland feels that he and the crew may be able to refine the Ventura's aerodynamics for the appointment with Talladega.

"We had some rough spots on the flares in May and we're going to experiment more with the rear spoiler to see how far we can cut it down without breaking the car loose. The car was about 100 pounds overweight in May, too, so we're gonna put her on a diet before July."

The qualifying record was set by Armuchee, Georgia's Billie Harvey on July 30, 1981 during time trials for the 9th annual ARCA 200 at AIMS. The late Bobby Isaac set the record for the fastest lap ever on a closed course in a stock car at 201.104 in November of 1970 at Talladega.

Ed Crechiolo survived a pesky Bonnie Baker team as Westworld edged their Class C, Yellow Division rivals, 7-5. Jim Harrison, Steve Woolweaver and Greg Lenhoff led the winner's attack on losing pitcher Dan Yanick. Each collected three hits.

Crechiolo served up three hits to Marc Lee and a pair of singles to Wendell Webb.

In the only other Class C game,

Oak Lanes erupted for six runs in the second inning and went on to beat Drake Lounge 7-1. Winner Estes Dobozy gave up four hits, including a triple to Glenn Heinrich.

Tom Hart was the loser as he delivered 13 hits. Mike Tracy belted three singles and chased home three runs, while Marc Szymansky had a triple. John Nason and Wally Wilson each had two singles for the winners.

Wheelchair drivers prove they don't have a handicap

for most wheelchair drivers is $5,000. He agrees it is expensive, but obviously worthwhile. "You know, he explained, "to a handicapped person, nothing is easy."
Wood credits both Greenwell's expertise and the Wayne-Westland school district for pursuing the program and offering it to the area students. "Sure, I suppose you could say it's expensive, but how expensive is it for someone to never be able to learn the skills to make them independent — to leave them trapped?" he queried.

The classroom portion of the special program includes adjusted materials for reading disabled students and the teachers have modified and rewritten the state material providing a text that the students with this type of ability can understand.

"The goal of our program is to train and educate the student to be able to pass the Secretary of State test. The course attempts to develop written and driving skills but the student has to ultimately pass the state test just like everyone else," Wood explained. He added that the course, also utilized by students from Livonia and other local areas, has an 80 percent success ratio.

He explained that many students know that they would be unable, for one reason or another, to pass the testing in a regular driving class. "This course is devised for the specific needs of special students — but it is challenging. There is no guarantee that they will pass," Wood said. "They have to be competent enough to drive in public before they get a license."

Wood personally instructs the most severely physically handicapped students in the adapted vehicle. "We may not leave the parking lot for three weeks, and then go only into very light traffic areas," Wood smiled, "but we get them there."
The special course is six weeks in length as opposed to the regular three week program and the teachers will give extra time and instruction to students if they feel that is the necessary element for success.

"They are good drivers when they get done. Many of our students have good physical skills with reading disabilities. We aren't testing them on how well they read, but on how well they understand the rules and know the traffic laws of the state," he said.

Wood credits the other staff members involved, Donnelly, Laura Fannon, Ron Barratt, John Fulton, Kevin Wilson, John Freeman and Jim Zoltowski for the real success of the program and is obviously very proud of the job the staff is doing.

"As I said, the credit goes to them and to the district. These kids would never have a chance to learn the skills to make them independent without this type of program. They need it," Wood concluded.

Driver's education students Brian Thomas, 16, and Keith Strickland, 15, both of Wayne take the good-natured advice of instructor John Wood while John Baker waits his turn behind the wheel.

Robert Greenwell, proprietor of Handicapped Driving Aids of Michigan, located in Wayne, demonstrates one of the several types of wheelchair lifts available for handicapped drivers.

CONFLICT

*Emotion conquers intellect
If allowed to manifest.
flesh and cognizance conflict
In humanity's contest.*

*The spirit's under siege
By the passions of emotion.
What impartial element
Can strengthen wit's devotion?*

*Life, the great adventure
Should be tempered with decision.
But never let ones living passion
Die of inhibition.*

*Emotion always leads
In the place of intellect.
While reason rallies furious
For a priceless self respect.*
